

The Success Podcast

for Ambitious Women

Season 1
Episode 13

Georgia Tusch: From Art Major to Real Estate Powerhouse

1. What stories from your own journey could you begin telling – about your work, your life, or your “why” – that would allow people to connect with you on a deeper, more human level?
2. In what ways have you been tempted to constantly pivot or reinvent yourself instead of refining what already works? What would it look like to master and double-down on your signature strength?
3. How could you uncover and highlight the emotional or human value behind what you sell, teach, or create – not just its technical or financial benefits?
4. Where do you need more structure to protect your creativity and freedom? What one process or support hire could free you to focus on your highest-value work?
5. What does “being the best” mean to you personally? Is it about recognition, mastery, impact, or something deeper – and how would your daily actions change if you pursued that definition with intention?